TDR: Tell us about your children.

DTH: Kevin, (29 years old) is a Certified Massage Therapist and Music Producer. Kevin was diagnosed with Bilateral Retinoblastoma at 10 months old and the decision was made to remove his eyes by the time he was 5 years old. Today, he lives a full productive life! Kristen (26 years old) is a Private Chef with 3 degrees in Culinary Arts Management. While addressing a life threatening illness while in college, Kristen discovered that she wanted to use her expertise in food preparation to show people how to use their food as their medicine and she hosts tasting parties to show health-conscious people that food at its finest is good and good for you! Kristopher (20 years old) recently graduated with a college degree in Automotive Technology, works at a car dealership, and is moving in the direction of real estate investing. Karrington (15 years old) is a 10th grader currently working on the last chapter of his first book in which he shares principles to live by through the eyes of his generation! Kevin and Karrington love music and law, Kristopher loves technology/electronics, and Kristen simply adores food!

TDR: How are you juggling your passion with the responsibilities of parenthood?

DTH: Passion, parenthood, and responsibilities are one in the same. Being a parent is about being a responsible model for your children so they too can live their passion. I don't separate parenting from my passion because I model my passion in my parenting, they are one!

Everything is a teachable moment. I prioritize, maximize my time, keep first things first, and guard my focus from distractions! I'm clear that I can teach my children (young adults) better by shifting from talking the walk to walking the talk! The more I personally create, the more clear their vision becomes! I got clear a long time ago that I'm here to create, live, and leave a legacy that speaks when I no longer can so I live with the end in mind! It's a true motivator!

TDR: What are some of your struggles and how do you work to overcome them?

DTH: I'm multi-talented, motivated, passionate, and a multi-tasker. Ideas flow like running water and it can be a struggle as to which ones to complete first. I used to struggle with making everyone's drama my drama because I'm here to support people in maximizing their lives, but I've learned to differentiate and strategically support those with whom I am sent here to serve.

TDR: What are 2 resources that you use to help you stay motivated?

DTH: I keep a visual of what problems I'm sent here to solve and I focus on what will my 50-year-old self thank my 40-year-old self for accomplishing.

TDR: What is your favorite way to pause?

DTH: music, aromatherapy, spa baths, painting, watching movies with my children, and trying a new restaurant with my daughter who's a foodie ...girls night out

TDR: What has been the scariest moment or crossroad in your journey?

DTH: When I was told that my son would be blind!

TDR: What would be your greatest advice to other "Power Moms" wanting to pursue their dreams?

DTH: You're not fully living until you are fully YOU! Release the faulty beliefs that keep you showing up as an imitation of who you truly are! You and your dream are one. It will go everywhere that you go until you embrace it, develop it, and release it in the marketplace!

TDR: What word best describes the legacy you want to leave for your children and why?

DTH: Vision -When you see beyond your current circumstances and view challenges as opportunities to grow, you maintain your momentum and you don't get stuck in what you are designed to flow through, hence becoming unstoppable!

TDR: How can others collaborate and support your mission?

DTH: Spread the word about The Attractive Thinker Generation global movement. Subscribe and share The Attractive Thinker messages that are on our YouTube channel and let people know that nothing is greater than learning how to use the power of their thoughts for thoughts are real things! When you align your thoughts with the things that you truly desire, you'll soon have them in your hand!
